THE INTERNET HAS CHANGED DATING FOREVER

Blind dates are just not the same anymore, thanks to computers.

Around 1980 B.C. (before computers), a blind date was usually arranged by friends, relatives and others who couldn't stand single people. ....

Because people were having little luck with blind dates, someone decided to invent the Internet.

The Internet is a short way of saying International Dating Network.

It links computers across the world so lonely people can go on dates from the privacy of their homes.

This is also known as virtual dating. Almost all computer dates are blind dates because you never see the person on the other keyboard who's sending sweet nothings to your screen.

Computer dates have several obvious advantages over traditional blind dates:

I am in Love

Whom do I love and Why ? !!!!!!!!!!! She Married Me !!!!!!!!!!!

This is to announce to the world my delight at Monica's decision to marry me.

She is without a doubt or reservation the most perfect person for me in the world. Her continued love for my son and myself has transcended the years of my denial of my love for her. I realize now there can be no other for me, and I will love and cherish her forever. It is therefore my intention to spend the remainder of my hopefully long life with her by my side.

The Bastard Operator From Hell

I'm sitting at the desk, playing x-tank, when some thoughtless bastard rings me on the phone. I pick it up. "Hello?" I say. "Who is this?" they say "It's me I think" I say, having successfully attended a telephone skills course "Me Who?" "Is this like a knock knock joke?" I say, trying anything to save myself having to end this game. Too LATE! I get killed. Now I'm pissed! "What can I do for you?" "Um, I want to know if we have a particular software package.." "Which package is that?" "Uh, B-A-S-I-C it's called." >clickety clickety d-e-l b-a-s-i-c.e-x-e<

The Impossible Task by Brian A. Jackson
I have never before, been asked to complete, such a very hard task.
To write with compassion and truth. But then again, I've done that since youth.
I was not asked to write on love or kindness, or the peacefulness of a dove.
Not to say sorry for something I've done or simply gaiety or fun.
How do you write about pure happiness? Or, a friendship when absence you miss? -----

Hey you freak! You practically GAVE your nasty firearms to a confused kid who used those weapons to MURDER three girls, and maim many others!
What kind of morons hang out here? I wanta puke!
Of course, if you sold your weapon to a rich person, someone who truly needs a gun to protect themselves from the robber-rabble that permeates our inner cities, suburbs, countryside--and national parks!

Dear Reader:
It's Week 28 now! Read all about it! Like last year, my Diary is definitely the coolest CEO diary on the Net! (Read it all from week 1 onwards! And don't forget -- you can order it NOW from Amazon.com!) And now you can add your own comments! Tell me what you think, and read other comments! Cool, huh?
Thanks for visiting!
Sincerely,
PS Bill Gates' lawyers think you might be confused about who wrote this diary. Is it the REAL Bill Gates? Hmmm... I know you're WAY too smart to fall for it. But, hey, read my disclaimer anyway..
